Instructions

Basis of Preparation

The financial statements are to be prepared in accordance with International Financial Reporting Standards (IFRS) or United States Generally accepted accounting principles (GAAP) as defined below.

International Financial Reporting Standards (IFRS) set common rules so that financial statements can be consistent, transparent, and comparable around the world. IFRS are issued by the International Accounting Standards Board (IASB). They specify how companies must maintain and report their accounts, defining types of transactions, and other events with financial impact. IFRS were established to create a common accounting language so that businesses and their financial statements can be consistent and reliable from company to company and country to country.

Generally accepted accounting principles (GAAP) refer to a common set of accounting principles, standards, and procedures issued by the Financial Accounting Standards Board (FASB). Public companies in the United States must follow GAAP when their accountants compile their financial statements. GAAP is a combination of authoritative standards (set by policy boards) and the commonly accepted ways of recording and reporting accounting information. GAAP aims to improve the clarity, consistency, and comparability of the communication of financial information.

Item 2. Management's Discussion and Analysis of Financial Condition and Results of Operations (MD&A)

MD&A must be included to enable the reader to assess material changes in financial condition and results of operations between the periods specified in paragraphs (1) and (2) below. MD&A must include a discussion of material changes in liquidity, capital resources, and results of operations.

Issuer may presume that users of the interim financial information have read or have access to the discussion and analysis for the preceding fiscal year when preparing the discussion and analysis.

The Issuer's discussion of material changes in results of operations shall identify any significant elements of income or loss from continuing operations that do not arise from or are not necessarily representative of the Issuer's ongoing business.

Issuer should disclose:

1. Material changes in financial condition. Discuss material changes from the end of the preceding year to the date of the current interim balance sheet. If the interim statements include an interim balance sheet as of the end of the corresponding quarter of the preceding year, material changes in financial condition from that date to the date of the current interim balance sheet must also be discussed. If discussions of changes from both the end and the corresponding interim date of the preceding year are required, the discussions may be combined
2. Material changes in results of operations. Discuss material changes in the most recent year-to-date period and the corresponding year-to-date period of the preceding year. Also, if an income statement for the most recent quarter (and comparative quarter) is included, discuss material changes with respect to the most recent quarter and the corresponding quarter in the preceding year. Also, if the Issuer has elected to provide an income statement for the 12-month period ending at the interim reporting date, MD&A must cover material changes in that 12-month period and the corresponding 12-month period of the preceding year.
3. Material changes in sources of liquidity and related mix.
4. Material changes in capital resources.
5. Material changes in off-balance sheet arrangements.
6. Material changes in contractual obligations that are outside of the normal course of business. [Note, the year-end contractual obligations table is not required for interim reporting purposes.]
7. Issuer should consider the impact of other significant events or circumstances on its MD&A disclosures including, but not limited to those, listed in the 'Other Reportable Events' section below
